

PROJECT INFINITY

An initiative of Inspired Practices, Project Infinity seeks to build strong and lasting relationships of professional exchange between small groups of unrelated schools by uniting in ongoing study of the philosophies and experiences of Reggio Emilia, Italy. Since 2002, the project's first group of schools has been evolving and developing through collaborative efforts and continual professional support, including periodic consultation with Amelia Gambetti of Reggio Emilia, Italy, educator and International Networks Coordinator. The overall aim of this professional development project is to craft support systems within and between schools that contribute to the continual expansion of positive experiences and high quality within each school.

EDUCATOR EXCHANGE

Educator Exchange is a way for schools participating in Project Infinity to interact with interested educators of other local schools. Educator Exchanges include a brief orientation to the host school, a self-guided tour of the school, mini-presentations about ongoing work of the school, and the chance to engage in open conversation with a team of educators from the school.
